

makeover challenge quickly followed, with Ann Marie's design magic taking hold once again.

Over twenty years spent in residential and commercial development combined with a globetrotting spell to different corners of the world, has seen demand for Ann Marie's elegant and timeless design aesthetic grow. So too, has her portfolio of commissions across Europe, the UAE, and the States.

With the launch of AMH Interiors – the brand continues to expand with offices in the UK, as well as the USA in Naples, Florida and Philadelphia. Clients can now enjoy Ann Marie's personalised approach to interior design; one that delivers a distinctive sense of style unique to each one. She explains: "Designing a home is an organic and intuitive process. The way you go about creating this most personal of settings not only involves fundamental decisions about your individual style, but also about the way you choose to live."

With a flexible approach and a keen understanding of the psychological impact of design, Ann Marie uses her knowledge and expertise to help build a personal signature, from the smallest creative detail to the cohesive blend and impact of an entire scheme.

Projects vary in size and style from small to grand; traditional to contemporary; personal to corporate. Whether searching for one exceptional piece to complete an established scheme or starting with a completely blank canvas - Ann Marie has the knowledge and experience to bring your interior vision to life.

Award-winning interior designer Ann Marie Hess lets Abode2 in on her jet-set style secrets

Renowned international interior designer, Ann Marie Hess, launched AMH Interiors in London in 2012. From early on, the company had an ambitious vision - expanding both its global reach and reputation with high profile nominations two years in a row for the SBID (Society of British Interior Designers) International Design Awards.

With a unique design pedigree; one that originally stemmed from a career in the fashion industry, Ann Marie's career began as a student at the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York City; her eclectic taste and natural eye for style quickly transitioned from fashion to interiors after she purchased her first home. Working on a limited budget, she honed her creative talents and developed a wide range of interior design skills. After completing the renovation and selling the property at a profit, the next
